The Prince William of Gloucester Barracks in Grantham were established on the site of the former RAF Spitalgate airbase in October 1976 as the new Central Volunteer Headquarters for the Royal Corps of Transport. It is now a large TA training centre. In the current training year, some 76,000 personnel were accommodated at Grantham and it boasts some outstanding training facilities. It provides phase one training to Army Reserve Recruits.

When the MOD supply chain company Carillion Amey wanted to upgrade the existing gym at RAF Grantham Prince William of Gloucester Barracks they turned to a sports flooring specialist based in Chertsey, Surrey. Reflex Sports would specify some 1800m² of Gerflor's Connor Sports Maple flooring to meet the military requirements.

As a sports specialist we were asked to replace the worn out sprung flooring at the barracks site. It was at the end of its useful life and needed urgent attention. Connor Maple from Gerflor was specified because the client Carillion Amey was looking for a long-lasting, highly durable sports surface. ▶▶
